About the Principles for Responsible Management Education (PRME)

The Principles for Responsible Management Education (PRME) is a United Nations-supported initiative founded in 2007 that aims to raise the profile of sustainability in their classrooms through Seven Principles focused on serving society and safeguarding our planet.

PRME engages business and management schools to ensure they provide future leaders with the skills needed to balance economic and sustainability goals, while drawing attention to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and aligning academic institutions with the work of the UN Global Compact. Driven by its mission to transform management education, PRME equips today's business students with the understanding and ability to deliver change tomorrow. As a voluntary initiative with over 800 signatories worldwide, PRME has become the largest organized relationship between the United Nations and management-related higher education institutions.

“The PRME initiative was launched to nurture responsible leaders of the future. Never has this task been more important. Bold leadership and innovative thinking are needed to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

Teach

We transform our learning environments by integrating responsible management concepts and practices into our curriculum and pedagogy.

Research

We study people, organizations, institutions, and the state of the world to inspire responsible management and education practice.

Partner

We engage people from business, government, civil society, and academia to advance responsible and accountable management education and practice.

Practice

We adopt responsible and accountable management principles in our own governance and operations.

Share

We share our successes and failures with each other to enable our collective learning and best live our common values and purpose.

The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)

In September 2015, all 193 Member States of the United Nations adopted a plan for achieving a better future for all – laying out a path over the next 15 years to end extreme poverty, fight inequality and injustice, and protect our planet. At the heart of Agenda 2030 are 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and 169 related targets that address the most important economic, social, environmental and governance challenges of our time. The SDGs clearly define the world we want – applying to all nations and leaving no one behind. Successful implementation of the SDGs will require all players to champion this agenda; the role of higher education is critical to this.

Letter of Commitment

Dear PRME Secretariat,

On behalf of Kyiv-Mohyla Business School (kmbs), a part of the National University of Kyiv-Mohyla Academy, I am pleased to formally reaffirm our deep and ongoing commitment to the Principles for Responsible Management Education (PRME), an essential initiative of the United Nations Global Compact.

Kyiv-Mohyla Business School acknowledges the critical importance of integrating sustainability, ethics, and responsible management into all aspects of business education. As a leading academic institution in Ukraine, we recognize our duty to help shape responsible leaders who are committed to fostering inclusive and sustainable global development.

We affirm our alignment with the Ten Principles of the UN Global Compact, encompassing the areas of human rights, labor, environment, and anti-corruption. These principles not only inform our curriculum development, research agenda, and institutional culture, but also guide our strategic decisions and partnerships within and beyond Ukraine.

In these challenging times — marked by geopolitical tensions, economic uncertainty, and complex societal shifts — we at kmbs remain steadfast in our mission to develop visionary leaders capable of addressing global and local challenges. We are devoted to embedding the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) into the heart of our educational programs, research initiatives, and community engagement.

In accordance with the six PRME principles, we pledge to continue:

- Developing curricula and educational frameworks that support responsible and ethical leadership;
- Conducting research that advances our understanding of corporate responsibility, sustainability, and social innovation;
- Engaging with stakeholders to share knowledge and promote mutual learning in pursuit of sustainable development.

We are proud to be part of the global PRME community and look forward to collaborating with fellow institutions to exchange best practices, foster innovation, and support the transformation of business education worldwide.

Thank you for your continued leadership and support.

Sincerely,

Oleksandr Savruk
Dean and Director
